- Culture refers to ideas, customs, traditions and behaviours of a particular group or community.
- We are all members of different communities, which gives us a sense of purpose and belonging.
- Strong, positive communities also help us to develop the tools we need for life's journey.
- Cultural diversity is the idea that a community has lots of different ideas, customs, traditions and behaviours and the UK is culturally diverse due to being a multicultural nation.

- Learners explore their own ideas of 'Belonging' to a community and sense of 'Britishness'
- Learners also explore the risks associated with belonging, such as peer pressure and grooming

2. How did the UK become a multicultural nation?

- The UK has been culturally influenced by different groups who have settled in the UK and brought their cultural traditions and values through:
- Invasion - eg Romans, Anglo Saxons, Vikings and the Normans all invaded this island.
- Empire, Colonisation and Commonwealth – Between the 1700s and 1900s, Britain built a huge Empire across the world which led to citizens from other countries settling in the UK to live and work.
- The slave trade – was a feature of the British Empire that led to some former slaves settling in the UK.
- Historic labour shortages - many men died during WW2, and the UK appealed for more workers from its former Empire, now known as the Commonwealth.
- Ongoing labour shortages - every year in the UK there are sectors that do not have enough workers to meet the country's needs which has led to ongoing economic migration to the UK. The NHS is a good example, relying heavily on foreign workers.
- Protecting the innocent - The UK also has a proud record of welcoming refugees from warzones European Union and 'freedom of movement
- In conclusion, the UK has always been a mongrel nation and the vast majority of us are descendants of people who arrived on boats in search of a better life.

3. What are the benefits of cultural diversity?

People being able to come and live, study or work in the UK from abroad can lead to:

- A more exciting and interesting society.

- More skilled workers and less labour shortages
- More jobs being created through investment from big global companies.
